PLAN FOR SHELTERS

MILLS DISCUSSES TYPES

The city's traffic police are eager for the shelters which may be provided to protect them from the rigors of cold and storm.

Many have suffered severe illness from colds contracted as they stood for hours, chilled and wet, on unprotected corners.

"I'll tell you, it'll mean a lot to us," said George Stever, who had been at Broad and Walnut streets for five years. "This is a cold spot when the wind blows, and many a winter I have suffered and twice was forced to go to bed for weeks."

"It will mean also that the traffic men can keep constantly at their posts. When it is very cold they often are forced to drop into some store to warm up. That means an unprotected corner and, of course, the worse the day the greater the danger to motorist or pedestrian."

One of the worst spots is at South Broad street and Penn Square. At this point traffic is extremely heavy and the wind seems to sweep down the intersecting streets with redoubled fury, just during the patrolman on duty to leave his post and seek a few minutes' rest in the nearby doorway to the City Hall.

Griffin has been there for ten years. He has broiled in summer and has shivered in winter. Griffin is not entirely in favor of the full-covered shelter. Too many autos skid around that turn and he wants to be free for a jump to safety.

"We sure do need some protection," he said, "but whatever it is I want a quick way of getting out. Many a time I have had to jump out of the way here. The city might have to replace a steel shelter here each week, but that's all right. I guess it would be up to the police pension fund to take care of the weekly change of men."

"This is without question one of the coldest and also most dangerous of the corners in Philadelphia. There is practically three-way traffic. The man on duty must be on the alert all the time and he needs some kind of shelter."

Superintendent of Police Mills is in favor of some kind of shelter for the traffic officers. He is not sure that the completely roofed style is best, and suggests a device that would cover the chest of the officer on duty, thus protecting his body, but leaving a clear vision in all directions.

Magistrate Nef Better

Magistrate Frank W. Nef, who has been in the private hospital of Dr. Empon H. Bainbridge, 1425 Potters street, for the last two weeks, suffering from a nervous breakdown and high blood pressure, will leave the hospital within the next few days for a stay of two weeks in the mountains, according to an announcement at the hospital today.

BEFORE AFTER

The Picture Tells the Story

See how you look before and after using Nujol. It is a medicine or laxative — cannot grip. Try it today.

Hemorrhoids

are usually due to straining when constipated. Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them.

Nujol is a medicine or laxative — cannot grip. Try it today.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Radium!

Think of the tremendous power there is in a piece of radium, hardly larger than a pin point. It is what one might call concentrated strength.

In speaking of food, the same is true of eggs. For the size of an egg, as compared with many foods, it contains greater concentrated nutritive power.
